

ABSTRACT

In this work a user-friendly tool for image classification based on neural networks is presented. The tool automatically implements and execute some actions masking them to unskilled users, while others aspects can be easily handled and solved by means of a trial and error approach. As a result, the package provides the pixel-based classification of the full image chosen as input with the possibility of saving the obtained product.